

To whom it may concern,

Gene has an incredible work ethic, and he is a pleasure to work with. As the manager of our core business operation at OnRamp, he managed a small team of researchers and worked to keep their information organized. He was a great communicator and very effective at motivating and raising the standard for employee performance. He was a constant student, always striving to find new ways to improve his performance and work output. He was also tasked with ensuring that emails went out on a consistent, carefully scheduled basis, and ensuring that every email was carefully monitored.

I recommend Gene for any position requiring excellent people management skills, communication, critical thinking, constant learning, and a great work ethic.
